PETITION PRESIDENT TO CALL NEW TRIAL OF MASSIE IN U. S.

DARROW TO APPEAL HAWAII VERDICT OF MANSLAUGHTER

MALONE REQUESTS HOOVER TO BRING DEFENDANTS TO U. S. IMMEDIATELY

BULLETIN!

New York—A request that Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, convicted in Honolulu of manslaughter, be immediately brought to the United States and given a new trial, was contained in a telegram sent President Hoover by Dudley Field Malone, noted la-

Honolulu, T. H.—An American society woman and three members of the United States navy Saturday faced one to 10 years' imprisonment after being convicted of manslaughter by a jury of mixed nationalities in the Joe Kahahawai slaying.

Recommends Leniency

They were accused of killing for the honor of a young matron—daughter of the society woman and wife of one of the men—who was brutally assaulted by five natives. Kahahawai had been accused as one of the attackers.

Those under conviction were:

Mrs. Grace Fortescue, former Washington and New York society woman who was in the islands visiting her daughter, Mrs. Thalia Massie, the young woman who was attacked.

Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., husband of Mrs. Massie.

A. O. Jones, a United States sailor.

E. J. Lord, a United States sailor.

The jury's verdict carried a recommendation for leniency.

The jury's recommendation of leniency and the week delay ordered by Judge Davis in passing sentence led to the belief that the four would be punished lightly. Although territorial law specifies a minimum term of one year, it is possible to grant paroles before that time upon approval of the Oahu prison board. The court also could suspend sentence.

Darrow will present a motion for a new trial at the hearing Friday. If it is denied he will appeal first to the Hawaiian supreme court and, if necessary, to the ninth circuit court of appeals in San Francisco.

To Fight Verdict

"I will not give up this fight until it is won or the last resource exhausted," he said after a conference with the defendants. "I cannot say how disappointed I am. I thought there would be an end to the bitterness of fortune that has been piled on these poor people."

An hour previous to the jury's return, Judge Davis had called defense counsel and police cleared the court room.

Darrow, the aging Chicago barrister who came from retirement to plead for the four, sat at the counsel table. His hair drooped in his eyes. He appeared weary after the strain of the trial which had lasted since April 3. He glanced toward the jury.

Kelley must prosecute the four at the second hearing, with Mrs. Massie as his principal witness. They were bitter opponents at the trial of her husband and mother, and shortly before the verdict Friday she spurned Kelley's overtures for peace.

He approached the blue-eyed girl as she was leaving the court after hearing the jujors announce they would soon have a verdict.

"I want you to know I have nothing against you, Mrs. Massie," the florid-faced prosecutor said.

"I find that hard to believe," she cried, turning on her heel.

DR. R. A. BEISE, DELEGATE G. O. P. CHICAGO CONCLAVE

ACCEPTS APPOINTMENT AS DISTRICT DELEGATE; IS PLEDGED FOR HOOVER

Dr. R. A. Beise, Brainerd, Saturday accepted the appointment as one of two delegates from the Sixth Congressional district to attend the National Republican Convention at Chicago, June 14.

The other delegate is Miss Grace Dunn, publisher of The Princeton Union at Princeton.

The delegates were named at the district republican convention at St. Cloud Friday and the appointments ratified at the state convention at St. Paul Saturday.

The delegates were pledged to support the candidacy of President Herbert Hoover.

Alternates chosen were S. W. Wennerberg, Chisago county; Rev. John Kromoliski, Stearns county.

The congressional district convention indorsed Congressman Harold Knutson, St. Cloud, for reelection.

Fittingly Honored

In naming Dr. Beise as delegate, eRpublican leaders of the district, conferred a fitting honor on a staunch Republican. They chose a man who has been active in the promotion of the party many years, a civic minded man and prominent Brainerd citizen during his 29 years residence here. Dr. Beise served as mayor of Brainerd the years of 1915-1918 inclusive. He was chairman of the county Republican committee the year of 1918 and has served as delegate to district and state Republican convention at various times.

NAME 'FREE LANCE' TRUCK OWNERS AS SUIT DEFENDANTS

CHARGE "FREE LANCE" OPERATORS ENGAGE IN TRAFFIC WITHOUT REGULATION

St. Cloud, Minn.—A group of Stearns county truck operators Saturday were made defendants in an injunction proceedings to test the legality of their alleged "free lance" truck operations.

The complaint charged that the truck operators hauled merchandise to the South St. Paul livestock market without obtaining a common carrier certificate from the state of Minnesota.

The defendants are:

Carl Grausham, Albany, Minn.

Joe Schpaniek, Holdingsford, Minn.

Theisen Brothers, Cold Spring, Minn.

Friedrichs Transfer, Sauk Center, Minn.

The plaintiff truck operators, all of Stearns county, include:

Raymond Brothers Motor Transportation, Inc., the Hoefel Transportation company, and A. A. Abeln, all common carrier truck operators, and the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie Railway company, Great Northern railway and Northern Pacific Railway company.

The complainants allege that while they have to submit to state regulation, run on fixed schedules, charge rates fixed by the state, maintain fixed standard of service, pay taxes on their revenues and post bonds, the "free lance" truck operators have engaged in the same business without regulation or restriction and without paying taxes.

The common carrier truck lines allege that bankruptcy threatens them unless these "free lance" operators are restrained.

"Cut yourself a piece of my birthday cake," said the governor of North Carolina to the governor of South Carolina.

"To think we'd come to this," said the governor of South Carolina to the governor of North Carolina.

BLIND AD BRINGS ARREST ROBBERY SUSPECT IN STATE

MISSOURI SCHOOL PRINCIPAL TAKEN AFTER DETECTIVE ANSWERS AD

Minneapolis—Blind advertisements in newspapers through which he hoped to obtain assistants to handle nitro-glycerin in safe blasting burglaries proved the undoing today of W. B. Duncan, Missouri elementary school principal, police claimed Saturday.

Duncan's downfall came about Friday when a Minneapolis detective answered an advertisement for "a man experienced in handling explosives" and arrested Duncan. Harry Cooper, 24, former highway engineer and graduate of an engineering course at Iowa State college at Ames, Ia., meanwhile had been arrested and confessed an attempt to burglarize a bank at Young America, under Duncan's guidance.

Cooper told police that he had answered an advertisement in an Omaha paper for a man "to handle nitroglycerin for blasting purposes." Duncan wrote him, Cooper said, setting a meeting place and warning that his activities were "outside the law."

Cooper, unemployed and recently married, kept the appointment. He and Duncan came to Minneapolis from where they made trips of inspection to banks in southern Minnesota, including Norwood, Cheska, Glencoe and Brownton, the youth said. They decided to burglarize the Young America bank. For several hours they labored at the vault but were unsuccessful and fled.

Police picked Cooper up and he admitted the attempt. Duncan had disappeared but the police found him through the newspaper advertisement.

MERGER ARMY-NAVY DEFEATED BY HOUSE

Washington—The house late Saturday completed the wreck of the economy bill by defeating the war and navy department consolidation section, thus eliminating from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 in probable annual savings.

A motion by Representative Martin, Democrat, Oregon, a former member of the army general staff, to strike out the section, was adopted, 153 to 135.

The house approved one of President Hoover's major proposals for economical reorganization of the government when it adopted the section of the economy bill establishing a unified public works administration.

The house voted down by 91 to 20 a proposal by Rep. Johnson, Dem., Texas, to strike out the section.

The section gives the chief executive authority to consolidate under one administrative head the scattered public works activities of numerous government departments. The only exceptions are the army engineer corps, the navy bureau of yards and docks and the office of the architect of the capitol.

As in the other major reorganization section approved Friday by the house, which gave the president broad powers to consolidate and reorganize other government activities, transfers to the public works administration would be subject to a 60-day congressional veto.

Place Little Credence In Private Negotiator

Hopewell, N. J.—State police continued Saturday to place little credence in the latest private negotiator seeking to return the kidnaped son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

In a bulletin referring to the activity of H. H. Entz, of Washington, D. C., Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, police head, said:

"Mr. Entz has not produced any identification to substantiate his story that contact has been established. When such identification is produced, he will recevie further consideration."

Coshocton, O.—A baby described as resembling kidnaped Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was reperted seen in the northwestern part of Coshocton county earlier this week, authorities said today.

The baby was accompanied by four women and a man who stopped at a garage Wednesday morning and remained until that night, Carl Horn, proprietor of the garage, sai. Horn said the car bore New Jersey license plates.

Yucatan Expedition Finds "Lost" Maya City

Washington—An expedition into the jungles of Yucatan has confirmed the existence of a "Lost" Maya city Scientists asid Saturday that the discovery was expected to add greatly to knowledge of old empire history.

The Carnegie Institution of Washington, announcing success of the expedition of Dr. Sylvanus Morley, declared the site of the forgotten city to be of enormous size and of great archaeological importance.

CERMAK TURNS TO SCHOOL BUDGET IN ECONOMY PROGRAM

TWENTY MILLION DOLLAR REDUCTION IN SCHOOL EXPENSES SOUGHT

Chicago—Mayor Anton J. Cermak's campaign for municipal economy which has gone a long way toward rehabilitating the city's broken-down finances Saturday swung to the $90,000,000 schools budget.

Fresh from victories in hacking millions from the 1932 city expenditures, the mayor, who has devoted virtually his entire time since succeeding former Mayor William Hale (Big Bill) Thompson to financial problems, wishes to effect a $20,000,000 reduction in school expenses.

The mayor obtained favorable recommendation of a $15,000,000 city budget reduction and with his control of the city council is expected to initiate the economy measure next week.

He opened his second fight to introduce "realism" in Chicago governmental expenditures by appointing two attorneys with records for taking a business view of finances to the school board.

Although appointees of former Mayor Thompson still have a majority on the board, the new Cermak members strengthened the present mayor's representation greatly.

DEMS ADOPT STAND CALLING REFERENDA; G. O. P. INDORSES NINE

Republican Conference Plans Adoption Resolution for Resubmission of Prohibition Amendment

St. Paul, Minn.—Indorsement of nine candidates for the Republican nominations as congrsesmen-at-large and adoption of a resolution for resubmission of the prohibition amendment were practically assured Saturday at the Republican state convention.

Overnight conferences and the morning session cleared the way for endorsement of nine congressional candidates, approving the indorsements already made by district conventions in the second, third, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth districts. Ward F. Senn, chairman of the fifth district committee, whose convention last Wednesday refused to indorse Representative W. I. Nolan, said this afternoon that in view of the majority sentiment the fifth district will "fall in line" with the nine-candidate slate and indorse Nolan.

Such action of indorsing candidates will virtually eliminate the expected "free-for-all" primary contest in the party which had been anticipated for the nine nominations.

The resolution committee met during the noon recess to draft a resolution favoring resubmission of the prohibition question in a referendum.

State Senator William L. Peterson, Lancaster, was chosen unanimously as temporary chairman of the state convention on a motion of Senator G. H. Sullivan, Stillwater, and John I. Levin, St. Paul, was elected temporary secretary.

Senn was named chairman of the credentials committee, which consisted of two members from each of the nine congressional districts.

St. Paul, Minn.—John H. Farrell, state Democratic chairman, Saturday praised the list of state and congressional candidates endorsed at the state indorsement committee session.

"I believe the committee did a good job both as to candidates and platform," Farrell said. Judging by the expressions of the candidates who were present to accept their indorsement, they are all ready and eager to make a hard campaign all along the line from president down. Conditions have not been so bright for Democratic success in Minnesota for many years.

The list of candidates included:

Governor—Dr. A. A. Van Dyke, St. Paul.

Lieutenant governor—H. M. Johnshoy, Starbuck.

Secretary of state—Willibald Eibner, New Ulm.

Treasurer—J. E. Howe, Cokato.

Attorney general—John M. Gannon, Hibbing.

Railroad and warehouse commissioner—Viggo Justesen, Askov.

Representatives-at-large — Einar Hoidale, Minneapolis; L. C. Hodgson, St. Paul; Anna Dickey Oleson, Northfield; Andrew Nelson, Duluth; E. G. Quamme, St. Paul; Senator Robert C. Bell, Detroit Lakes; Ben Loeffler, Albert Lea; J. A. Cashel, Worthington, Emil E. Holmes, Onamia.

The platform adopted called for a prohibition referendum, reduction of the "steadily mounting flood of public taxes," adoption of a state income tax, enactment of stringent laws to penalize tax evasion, re-establishment of party designation in election of state legislators, strengthening "blue sky" laws and opposed governmental entry into business in competition with private citizens and corporations.

In reply to a query on how the congressional candidates stood on the prohibition issue, W. F. Donohue, St. Cloud, chairman of the nominations sub-committee, said the sub-committee had investigated that phase and that "all are loyal Democrats and opposed to the 18th amendment."

SEEK STEPSON AND AIDE FOR MURDER

St. Paul—Convinced that Arthur W. Dunlap, Sr., was slain by a stepson and his companion, both of whom are wanted by Missouri authorities for killing a marshal, Minnesota and Wisconsin authorities broadcast a warning through eight states for the men and two women companions.

Dunlap's bullet riddled and naked body was found at Frenstad Lake near Webster, Wis., Tuesday. On Monday Dunlap, two women and men later identified as Alvin Karpis and Fred Barker disappeared from St. Paul as police were about to apprehend them. The possibility that Dunlap was killed in Minnesota brought local authorities into the case.

Dunlap had lived in St. Paul under the name of George E. Anderson. He bought an automobile recently, however, as Arthur Dunlap. Dunlap was married to Barker's mother, according to word from West Plains, Mo., police.

A woman's glove was found near the scene of the slaying and bullets similar to those used to kill Dunlap were found in the rooming quarters occupied by the five persons.

Dunlap, police said, has a son, Arthur Dunlap, Jr., 6131 Idaho Ave., St. Louis.

BLAST DESTROYS SHELTER KILLING 3

Welland, Ont.—Three employes of the Michigan Central railroad were killed Saturday by an explosion which destroyed the shack in which they were eating their lunch.

The dead were Samuel Bell, John Nukoluk and Peter Hodowen.

Frank Sakal, the only survivor of the group which entered the shack, told Chief of Police Daniel Boyd that the explosion came without warning. He had stepped out a short time before.

"I hadn't gone more han a few yards before the whole ground seemed to shake," he said. "I turned around and there were nothing but smoking boards where the building had been standing."

It was reported a quantity of gasoline was stored in the building.

Rainey Scores 'Contact' Men Congress Payroll

Copyright, 1932, by United Press

Washington—The growing practice of senators and congressmen in maintaining "contact" men back home who are listed on the congressional payroll here as clerks was denounced Saturday by Rep. Henry T. Rainey, democratic leader of the house, in an interview with the United Press.

He said it was merely a way of looking after political fences at government expense.

Rainey mentioned no names but a number of cases have been brought to light recently.

Foremost among these is Speaker Garner whose son, Tully, is on the house payroll as a clerk but actually lives at Uvalde, Texas, where he manages his father's private affairs and looks after his congressional business. The senate Democratic leader, Joseph T. Robinson, has on the senate payroll as a clerk his brother-in-law who lives at Little Rock and serves as president of a bank while looking after the senator's congressional business.

Rep. Ruth Bryan Owen, Dem., Fla., recently adopted the practice.

Rep. Rankin, Dem., Miss., had a Jackson, Miss., newspaper man on the roll as clerk of the world war veteran committee. The young man recently returned to Washington, however.

Rainey, who has served in the house for 30 years, was asked about the custom of employing relatives and absentees on the payroll—the two most prevalent forms of the family payroll racket as revealed here.

"If the people elect a representative and he's abusing their confidence by taking money out of the treasury, whether through relatives or political henchmen, that conduct is most reprehensible. The test is not relationship, but service rendered.

Any member who takes trust funds—for that is what the government money is—and devotes it to somebody who is a thousand miles away and is rendering no service except to look after his political fences ought to be condemned."

While Rainey was talking, his wife, an elderly woman wearing a black hat, came into his office She sat down at a desk covered with newspapers from Rainey' Illinois district and began scanning them.

"Have you any member of your family on your payroll?" the correspondent asked.

"Yes," he replied. "Mrs. Rainey over there is on as a clerk. She does more work and gets the least pay of anyone in the office. I wouldn't trade her for any fluffy-haired stenographer in the country."

Another congressman condemned the practice of keeping "contact" men on the payroll. Rep. Charles I. Sparks, Rep., Kan., said he had his son and daughter-in-law on his payroll but that both actually worked.

20 Church Members, Including Two Ministers, Conducting Revival, Overcome by Gas

St. Louis—Twenty members of carondelet Baptist church, including two ministers conducting a revival meeting were overcome b yescaping gas which permeated the church during a prayer which closed the services.

The presence of mind of a third clergyman, who exhorted the rest of the congregation to rush outside saved many others from being overcome by the fumes, said to have been caused by a leak in a hot water heater.

Elder James Bone was ending the old fashioned revival meeting with a prayer last night when the Rev. E. C. Abernathy, Hannibal, Mo., conductor of the revival, fell over. Then Rev. William A. Wigger, pastor, collapsed.

Members of the congregation began to fall. Others, ill, edged quietly toward the doorway. The Rev. Owen H. Fisher, assistant pastor, standing in the rear, sensed the trouble and began to pray asking the Lord to guide his parishoners outside.

"I was feeling rather sick mysteif and I knew something was wrong," he explained later. "So I raised my voice so the congregation would hear me and asked the Lord to guide them outside as quickly as possible.

"The congregation seemed to understand me when I prayed. They filed out in as orderly a manner as was possible, helping me carry out their friends and relatives who were sick."

Officials Gird Against Disturbances May Day

By United Press

The traditional celebration of May Day on Sunday found authorities of America and Europe ready Saturday to deal with possible disturbances, although there were no indications the usual parades and gatherings would not be orderly.

New York's entire police force will be on duty. The chief celebrations will be held by widely separated organizations, Communists and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

London's celebrations will occur at Hyde park and Tower hill. The usual heavy police detail will be on duty. Reports at London indicated May Day observance in Europe generally might turn against Japanese imperialism.

May Day and Easter are on the same day in Russia. Moscow prepared for a parade lasting from dawn till twilight, while millions of Greek Orthodox believers celebrated Easter in their churches.

Paris had an army of troops and police on duty, for May Day coincides with the first voting in the French legislative election.

Central Europe appeared not to be worried over possible disorder. Pre-May Day raids in Greece resulted in 140 arrests.

Alice of Wonderland Awed by Towery Skyscrapers After 70 Years' Absence

New York—Alice wandered today through the wonderland of New York's skyscrapers and found them madder than the maddest antics of the mad hatter, and so amusing that a constant smile, almost equalling that of the Cheshire cat, was on her face.

"My goodness!" she exclaimed repeatedly. "My goodness!"

True, she saw not white rabbit scurrying through Broadway's canyons; no duchess or dodo or mouse, telling his long tale of a tail. But she saw hotels with a radio in every room and giant buildings towering up into the sky and millions of people hustling every which way on the streets.

Seventy years have passed since the hot July afternoon when the scholarly and shy Cambridge Don, Lewis Carroll, sat in a punt and fashioned for 10-year old Alice's amusement the beautiful nonsense later published as the book "Alice in Wonderland" that has entertained generations of children and grown-ups.

The grown-up Alice, now Mrs. Reginald Hargreaves, came from England to join in celebrating the 100th anniversary of Lewis Carroll's birth, at Columbia university next Wednesday.

Mrs. Hargrave, was rather awed by the fuss which reporters made over her. Her sister, Mrs. Rhoda Liddell, sat beside her, knitting a sweater for a crippled soldier in England. Her youngest son, Captain Caryl Hargreaves of the Scots Guards, sat nearby.

SALE OF 215 POUND PORKER AT SOUTH ST. PAUL BRINGS FT. RIPLEY FARMER 5 CENTS

M. Magnan, Ft. Ripley farmer, sent his pig to market at South St. Paul—net result, a check for five cents, and that's all he gets.

Magnan Tuesday sent the pig, a 215 pound porker to South St. Paul by truck service, hoping to secure a return on the money he invested in the raising of the pig.

Saturday, Magnan reecived in the mail a check in the amount of five cents which was his net return after the pig had been sold, transportation and commission charges deducted.

Enclosed with the check was the statement of account by the commission company. These figures were listed:

Credit
One hog, 215 pounds	$1.61
Debit
Yardage	$.13
Corn	.10
State Weight charge	.01
Fire Insurance	.01
Hog Inspection	.01
Commission	.35
Hauling charge	.95
Total	$1.61

Ordinarily Maghnam would have to pay five cents for the cashing of a check out of the county.

One of the banks in the city ruled an exception in this instance and promised to cash the check without carrying charge.

Magnan does not intend to cash the check. He will preserve it for evidence to all those who doubt this story.

The farmer stated that the porker cost him approximately $10 to raise. All of which shows a net loss to Mr. Magnan of $9.95—and now, no pig.

"We farmers must keep our wits about us these days if we are to keep our heads above water. Oh, well," and with these words Mr. Magnan returned to Ft. Ripley to complete his day's chores.

MAN BLAMED FOR DUMP GROUND ROW ADJUDGED INSANE

A 42 year old man blamed for a recent disturbance at the city dumping ground, West Brainerd, has been adjudged insane and committed to the state institution at Fergus Falls.

The man, widower, lived in a shack near the dumping grounds. Officials said he had been living on food refuse at the city dumping grounds. When he violated rules, the custodian ordered him off the premises. He retaliated by striking the custodian. Later he reached in his hip pocket in a move as if to draw a gun, and was struck over the head with a handle of a pitch fork by the assistant custodian, the latter reported. The hearing did not establish if the man carried a gun.

Testimony revealed that the man had not been employed for 12 years. He is known to have a daughter residing in Nebraska.

All joined in a spirited sing, led y Ben Taylor, Harry Burton at the piano.

W. C. Cobb, superintendent of schools, acted as toastmaster, congratulating the boys on their splendid work.

The toastmaster first called on Miss Mary F. Tornstrom, high schcol principal, who spoke on the good school work of the boys, as well as that in atheltic fields.

A few words were spoken by Hugo Sundberg on behalf of the school board; by William Holman, for track; by Mary Hopkins for the press; by eGrald Wygle in the field of football; and by Elmer Foster for basketball.

Musical entertainment was furnished by Rolph Melby, Clifford Dybvik, Gerald Wygle and Maurice Larson. This quartet sang a medley of familiar old tunes and when encored responded with the old favorite, "Sweet Adeline."

Coach William Dammann in his speech said that the players should keep in mind the fact that more is learned in a game olst than in a game won. Above all the goal of every school should be to build up a good reputation by a show of good sportsmanship, he said.

Coach Dammann introduced David MacMillan, basketball coach of the University of Minnesota. MacMillan spent a few minutes reminiscing on personal experiences on the floor as a basketball player. He explained with a great deal of humor the differences in playing before definite rules were made, and the rigid instructions carried out today.

Having coached in universities for sixteen years, the speaker outlined four requisites of a model player: reliability, ambition, courage(both mental and physical) and most of all the love to play. These, he explained, are what he looks for in every boy that tries out in any field of athletics.

Superintendent Cobb introduced as the last speaker, the president of the school board, Robert Crust, who explained, in part the work of the school board and offered the boys congratulations.

Balks Police

When Chicago police came to the cell of Miss Lucille Strong, shown above, to take her out for "lineup" were their faces red? Yes indeed. Miss Strong had taken off all her clothes and refused to put them on again. But finally she was persuaded to dress up and face a charge of stealing a coat.

COWARDICE IN POLITICS—

Cowardice, as Rodney Dutcher pointed out in a dispatch from Washington the other day, has become one of the most common characteristics in American public life.

Our political leaders, he remarked, possess an extraordinary amount of caution. They fear nothing so much as a real live issue. When they fight they take good care to get all the guns on their side. They reserve their heaviest blasts for insignificant opponents who cannot fight back effectively.

The commonest explanation for this sad state of affairs is that it is inevitable in a democracy. Office holders depend on votes for their jobs. If they make enemies they lose votes. The pressure to straddle, to compromise, to placate powerful minorities and minority leaders, is almost overwhelming.

Oddly enough, though, a sacual glance at American political history will show that this sort of think isn't in the least necessary. The politicians are revealing, not the fundamental fault of democracy, but their own weakness.

What has happened is that the politicians have made the mistake of underestimating the common sense and good judgment of the electorate.

The greatest figures in American political history are the men who dared to make enemies—the men who were willing to follow their own conceptions of right and trust to the electorate for an accurate understanding of them.

Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, Roosevelt, Wilson—they were, one and all, fighters, enemy-makers. They knew politics, of course; they could compromise when they had to; but they could also adopt an unpoplar line of attack and stick to it no matter how great the risks to their own personal fortunes. And it is worth remembering that the electorate stood by them time and again.

The cowardice of our politicians, in other words isn't an inevitable part of democracy. Let a really bold and determined political leader appear today and the response he would get might be astonishing.

THE FARM'S ADVANTAGE—

The farmer may be having a hard time these days, but the state of Michigan last year had more applications for homestead land than it had had in several years previous.

Most of the applicants were jobless factory hands, who jumped at the chance of getting a bit of farm land, tax-free for five years, on which they could raise food for their families. State officials admit that most of these homesteaders will probably return to the factories as soon as good times come back, letting their homsteads revert to the state; meanwhile, however, the "back to the farm" movement is popular.

This touches on the one great advantage that the farmer has over the city worker. Times may be villainously hard and money may be scarce; but he can at least feed himself and his family, while the jobless man in the city has to depend on charity for every bite. Being broke on a farm is one degree better than being broke in the city.

THE RUBBER-TIRED RAIL CAR—

The rubber-tired, gasoline-powered railway car that was tried out recently on a railroad in the middle west may eventually be the instrument with which the railroads will make a successful fight against the bus.

This car, devised in France and now being produced in the United States, is admirably designed to compete with the bus. It can carry 30 passengers, can attain a speed of 58 miles an hour and has an operating cost of only 15 cents a mile—as compared with 25 cents for the bus.

Railroad officials who inspected it expressed keen interest. It is quite possible that a lot of the local passenger traffic lost to the motor bus in recent years might be regained with some such car as this. You are apt to hear a good deal more about it in the next few years.

THE SOUND OF MANY WATERS—

"When every nerve is taut with the effort to bring industry and commerce up from decline, to revive hope, to restore employment, to keep the national credit high and unchallenged, it is discouraging in the extreme to see so many men in Congress willing to make ducks and drakes of our public finance. If they are waiting for public protests to urge them back to paths of sanity, such protests ought immediately to come up to them from all quarters of the land like the sound of many waters."—New York Times.

BUS REGULATIONS—

The Interstate Commerce Commission seems to be moving wisely in recommending gradual formation of a federal code to govern interstate transportation by motor bus and truck.

As the commission remarks, this is a new field, and it is important that the government, in entering it, move slowly and feel its way from point to point. It is not quite plain, yet, just where the public interest chiefly lies in this matter, and precipitate action must be avoided.

But it is clear that some sort of regulation is needed. Interstate commerce is interstate commerce, whether it moves by bus or by train; if one variety needs governmental supervision, it seems obvious that the other variety needs it also.

DRIVE FOR SAFETY

A recent nation-wide survey shows that more than 90 per cent of automobile accidents are caused by bad human judgment, human carelessness and human stupidity.

To aid in lessening the number of accidents the Brainerd Daily Dispatch will publish a series of brief, effective suggestions in driving.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, who lives with her AUNT JESSIE on Chicago's west side, has an unpleasant experience when she applies for her first job. BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son whom Susan had met at business school, comforts her. She secures employment as secretary to ERNEST HEATH prominent architect. BEN LAMPMAN, a moody young admirer of Susan's, invites her to a studio party given by some Bohemian friends. Susan does not enjoy the affair and decides not to see Lampman any more. Weeks pass and the girl is lonely. JACK WARING, Heath's assistant and divorced, shows the girl attentions but she refuses his invitations.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I wanted to tell you something," Bob said. "You must know—you must have guessed before this—"

CHAPTER X

ON the way home in the hard brightness of the street car Ben said, "That's the way to live. Like Sonya and Arnold. Free and easy."

Susan stared at him. "You like that?"

Ben moved impatiently. "Oh, I knew what you'd say. I know the apartment's kind of messy. But they're not tied down. They live their own lives and have a good time."

Susan felt an hysterical impulse to laugh but she restrained herself. She had thought the whole crowd, the Strinskys and their unwashed friends (with the exception of that exotic blossom, Denise), dreadful people.

She let her hand lie limply in Ben's warm one at parting. "I can't ask you to come in," Susan said gently. "Aunt Jessie's gone to bed. Thank you for taking me to the party."

Ben muttered, "Wanted you to meet the crowd. You'll like them better when you know them. They're real people."

Susan withdrew her hand. "Good night, then," she said, avoiding his hot, uncomfortable gaze. He called after her, "I'll phone you." Susan waved to him through the screen door, glad the tiresome evening was over. There was something almost frightening about Ben's intensity. Even when he had talked of the Strinskys' romance he had made it seem a personal matter.

Those dreadful people! Their way of living might seem ideal to Ben Lampman but it certainly did not to Susan. She would not go there again!

BUT as summer waxed and waned the girl almost regretted her decision. Chicago's Bohemia might not be the social background she desired but loneliness was hard to bear and the warm nights brought with them an aching sense of missing something.

Rose Milton went to Sweetbrier Lake for two weeks and wrote back glowing accounts of her conquests. She sent snapshots of herself, the center of a merry mixed group. Susan, tossing sometimes on a hot and disordered bed, listening to the raucous music of the radio next door, would wonder about life. She was 19, not unattractive, intelligent. What promise was there ahead for her? Even if she held the job at Ernest Heath's (and it looked as if she might, with Miss O'Connell's convalescence lengthening out) what had she to look forward to?

Next year she might get $22 a week. In five years she might even be making $35. Well, what then? She would stay on with Aunt Jessie in the cottage. She would be 25, she would be 30, 35. She would begin to wear eyeglasses and go to lectures in the evening with some woman friend. She would be one of the brave, ever-increasing army of unmarried women workers in the Loop district. They had their two weeks' vacation, their one presentable suit. They wore neat, sensible shoes and devoted themselves wholeheartedly to the concern for which they labored.

Susan said to herself that it wouldn't be so bad if the average secretary could see herself getting ahead as a young man might, using the office as a stepping stone to higher places. The typical girl worker, however, poured her energy, her sympathy and her intelligence into the job and unless she met with exceptional luck or extraordinary favoritism she might work 10, 15, 20 years without any recognition beyond the weekly pay envelope whose sum remained discouragingly small.

• • •

SHE was young, she was lonely, she was good. Sometimes during those warm, disturbing summer nights Susan wondered if it paid. She wondered if she might not, some day, answer the invitation in Jack Waring's eyes. She wondered if that seat in his sport roadster might not prove altogether too alluring some evening. Susan hoped not but she wondered.

The telephone rang one morning when she was alone in the office.

"Hullo. Miss Carey?"

The girl's heart, for no good reason, began to beat thickly and uncomfortably.

"This is Bob Dunbar. Be an angel and have lunch with me. At one? Righto. How about the Blackstone?"

Susan hung up the receiver with a gasp. The Blackstone, and she was wearing her old pink shantung! Well, her hat was new. It was a little rose pink straw she had picked up on a basement counter for $1.50. You would never have guessed the price. In a fever of excitement she waited for Pierson to come back to relieve her. With trembling fingers she pressed the small hat into place. If only she had known, if only she had guessed he was going to call her! She might have had a manicure. She might have worn her more sophisticated blue crepe. She might have done a thousand things!

Dissatisfied, almost in tears, at last she picked up her hand bag and turned to go. Pierson's whining voice followed her.

"Don't forget to be back by two, sharp. Mr. Heath has that cathedral estimate he wants to draw up."

Susan caught her underlip in her teeth. Well, that was being a working girl. She would have to hurry. No dallying over the coffee cups for her today.

She walked on air to Michigan avenue. Despite the fact that the society editors declared no one stayed in Chicago for the dog-days there was, as usual, a well-dressed, alert-eyed throng of shoppers on the avenue. The day was a gift from the gods. Cool, almost sharp that breeze was and there were white caps ruffling the cobalt surface of the "inland sea."

Susan drew great breaths and was glad to be alive—glad to be on the sunny side of 20—glad to be meeting this particular young man.

He came toward her, detaching himself from the little group in the lobby, and she felt a lift of the heart at sight of that tall, well-knit figure in its perfectly fitting gray flannels.

He lifted his hat, and that simple action set her heart rearing and plunging like a wild thing.

"You look awfully fit!" The clipped voice was just as Susan remembered it. Not for nothing had Bob Dunbar spent several years at British schools.

She smiled at him, almost too happy to speak. "You, too," she said softly. She wondered why she was always at ease with this boy. She had known him such a little while and yet it was always as if they were renewing an old and delightful acquaintance. It was as if they had known each other forever.

• • •

HE leaned across the table, his blue eyes darkening as he stared at her frankly, quite as if he'd never seen her before.

"I like you in that pink thing," he said slowly. And a strange thing happened. The room, the other lunchers, the waiters murmuring in a corner, the music muted from the strings of a discreet orchestra, all seemed to vanish. The boy and girl were alone. Yet all she said was, "Thank you." Her voice shook ever so little as she formed the words.

"I'm going abroad again," said the boy still looking at her strangely and deeply. "Father wants me to. I wanted to say goodby."

The words rang like a knell in Susan's heart yet, being a woman, she summoned a fixed smile to answer him.

"Going abroad?" she repeated, feeling rather stupid yet unable for the moment to find other words.

He frowned and played with his fork. "Yes. Thought I was to stay here and go into the business."

She said "I'm sorry" and the words struck her as being painfully inadequate.

"So am I." His mouth twisted whimsically as he looked at her. "I—it wasn't all gone as I thought it would. I wanted to be friends. I hoped—"

The waiter arrived with a tray of little silver dishes and Susan hated him. There was an interval and then they were alone again in the vast, scented, murmuring room once more.

"Well, that's that!" Bob Dunbar told her. His laugh sounded nervous and harsh. "Perhaps you'll still be around when I come back."

"When will that be?"

"Oh, late fall—by Christmas, at the outside."

Christmas — Christmas — Christmas—. Susan felt as though she were suffocating. To find love, all at once, and have it snatched away.

Those large, fringed eyes, gray and blue by turns, were raised to his.

"That's right. I wanted to tell you something. I would have before but the family's been pestering me all summer. Been keeping me out of town. Treating me like a kid in grade school. But you must know—you must have guessed before this—"

Susan felt joy suffusing her, washing over her like warm rain.

Into the waters of this tete-a-tete there dropped the tiniest of pebbles. A girl's voice, slow and drawling and insolent, broke across Bob Dunbar's. The strange voice said, "Wherever have you been, darling? I've been missing you so."

Susan glanced up to find the red-haired girl who had been at the Strinskys' party staring impudently at her. But the words were addressed to Bob Dunbar who had sprung to his feet.

"Miss Ackroyd, this is Miss Carey," he said.

Susan wished the ground might open and swallow that red-haired girl, Denise.

HUMBUG

To Editor Daily Dispatch:

This is an age of camouflage, shamming and deceit, and the majority of the people are living ten years ahead of their capacity. Why? To be like the other fellow, or the neighbor, or trying to be just a little better than some one near you.

A study of humanity at the present time shows that their earnings are contracted for years before it is even earned, the result is that money is being hoarded by a few at the folly of the scrambling mass trying to be attracting attention.

Passing the buck is almost a profession and meeting one with an assumed millionaire attitude one would think that wealth abounds from all sides.

We have fanatcis of all classes, politics, religion, labor, education and other theories, but the class with the least power of resisting this artifice lead all others.

I know of fathers working at a daily toil, hardly making a fair living whose wife and children are dressed way beyond his capacity, just to keep up with society. Proper training and education to let others be and live as per one's capacity would be worthy of effect, and certainly worth while of the leading men of the country to attempt. Misplaced pride and miscalculated endeavors have been the downfall of many a great man, but heedlessly the multitude will carelessly plunge in deeper water than their nose can reach when they can not swim.

Our Woods and Waters

Conservation is a major problem in many communities.

Much opposition to conservation is due to ignorance as to what it is all about and a lack of vision although education is gradually bringing many to a place where they see it in a different light. The most opposition comes from those who have enjoyed unlimited privileges or are selfishly exploiting the out-of-doors as a means of living.

The natural resources of a community is a major industry and must be considered from more than the narrow personal viewpoint.

A business man recently took the time and trouble to get information and compile figures and was astounded to find that $3,500,000 was spent in Brainerd in one season. Can that community boast of a greater industry than her natural resources of lakes, streams and woods with everyone either directly or indirectly benefitted?

Does it not behoove any community to do its utmost to perpetuate such a source of revenue by reasonable and sensible conservation methods? It is like eating the cake and having it too for local people enjoy the out-of-doors as well as the visitor.

Why not be reasonable, sane and sensible in the attitude toward fish and game and protect them against wanton destruction by greed or lust? It is time that was considered from the angle of the finny or feathery or furry creature of the woods and not from the selfish personal angle. Why not keep lakes and streams well stocked with fish and covers well filled with game that this great industry may live to produce not only profit to those who live in a favored region but health, happiness and recreation to all?

However, so long as there are men that are more clever than conscientious, just so long will the defender and protector of outdoor life have to battle for the major industry whose greatest profit is not measured in dollars and cents but in the refreshing sweetness of a manifestation of the Creator of it all.

THE FARM BOARD'S WHEAT

Immensity of the Federal Farm Board's holdings of wheat and cotton is illustrated by this graphic sketch. The board's 190,000,000 bushels of wheat could be baked into 8,500,000,000 loaves of bread, or enough to supply every person in the world with 4¼ loaves. The board's 1,310,000 bales of cotton, if laid end to end, would extend from the cotton fields of Dixie to the New England textile district and would fill 26,209 freight cars or a train 248 miles long.

Walker Pummels Chicago Kingfish for Verdict

LEVINSKY PUTS WALKER ON MAT BUT SLOWS PACE

Chicago—Mickey Walker, enigma of the heavyweights despite his physical handicaps, Saturday added a 10-round victory over King Levinsky to his 15-round draw with Jack Sharkey last July and moved up just behind the heavyweight divisions's big three, Schmeling, Sharkey and Schaaf.

Although knocked down in the first round, and outfought in the two succeeding rounds, Walker—lighter in weight and shorter in reach and height—staged a dramatic rally to turn apparent defeat into victory before 19,995 persons who paid $73,892.82.

Weighing 172 to Levinsky's 195, Walker was under a 23 pound handicap but a stout heart which refused to quit in the face of heavy handicaps enabled him to keep battling with all the strength of his chunky frame until he wiped out Levinsky's lead and swept on to triumph in the last two rounds.

The decision was not unanimous, the two judges voting for Walker and the referee, Ed Purdy, Chicago hotel detective, giving his vote to Levinsky. Before the bout Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, strenuously objected to Purdy, and told members of the Illinois commission that he was fighting under protest if Purdy refereed.

Kearns announced Saturday that he planned to keep Walker active in his campaign to get a shot at the heavyweight title, having signed for him to meet Johnny Risko at Cleveland May 10 and Paolino Uzcudun at New York May 26.

In the first two minutes of fighting Friday night, Walker ran into a terrific right to the head which sent him sprawling on his back. He refused to stay down although dazed and came up fighting before the referee began a count.

Walker apparently was affected by this blow during the next two rounds, in which Levinsky repeatedly rocked him with punches to the head. Going into the fourth round, Levinsky looked like a certain winner but the eccentric Chicago Hebrew made the mistake of slowing up his pace. Walker held him even in the fourth round, and then started a rally that won the next three rounds and evened the fight.

Walker caught Levinsky with a short right in a brisk exchange at close quarters in the seventh round, and dropped the former fish peddler. Levinsky wasn't hurt and arose without a count. Walker followed up his advantage and had Levinsky bleeding from the nose at the end of the round.

Levinsky rallied briefly in the eighth round, but Walker, fighting cleverly and making Levinsky miss frequently, won the last two rounds. Walker's left hooks to the body during the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds apparently hurt Levinsky and helped to slow him down.

On His Game

As if the handicap of wearing glasses weren't enough, Vic Sorrell, above, Detroit pitcher, started out the 1932 season like he might be after the hard-luck championship. Vic twirled two fine games in the first week of the campaign, but lost both on tough breaks. He managed to break into the win column in his third effort, another well-pitched game against Cleveland. The spectacled hurler, along with Whitehill, Uhle and Wyatt, may be the means of Detroit becoming a 1932 first division club.

DODGERS ACQUIRE JERSEY CITY CLUB; LOSE TO PHILS 13 TO 6

WEAVER PITCHES NATS TO VICTORY OVER ATHLETICS

New York—Still at the rear of the National league parade, the Brooklyn club Saturday began operating the Jersey City club of the International league.

President Frank B. York of the Dodgers and Sam Colocurcio, owner of the Skeeters, signed an option agreement by which Brooklyn will purchase the Jersey club in November if "certain difficulties" are cleared up.

York and his assistants feel the chain-store system of baseball will meet increased competition. They purchased Hartford of the Eastern league last year, and are negotiating for Wheeling, W. Va., of the Middle Atlantic league.

Friday, the Dodgers dropped back into the cellar by losing 13 to 6 to the Phillies. Chuck Klein hit a homer with the bases loaded in the second inning.

The Cincinnati Reds took their second straight game from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 4, by bunching six of their seven hits in the first three innings.

Five errors helped the New York Giants give the Boston Braves an 8 to 3 victory.

In the American league, Monte Weaver, Washington rookie, pitched his fourth straight victory, as the Senators beat the Athletics, 2 to 1.

The New York Yankees held their league lead by beating the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 7.

Cleveland's Indians came from behind to score three runs in the seventh and defeat the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 5. Glen Myatt, Cleveland catcher, homered in the eighth.

SEND JOLLEY, TATE WATWOOD BOSTON FOR CHAS. BERRY

Chicago — The latest Chicago White Sox trade—the third in five days—has added Catcher Charlie Berry and Jack Rothrock, infielder-outfielder, to Manager Lew Fonseca's club.

The White Sox sent Outfielders Johnny Watwood and Smead Jolley and Catcher Tate to the Boston Red Sox for Berry, and then purchased Rothrock from the same club for the waiver price of $7,500.

Previously the White Sox had obtained Johnny Hodapp and Bob Seeds from Cleveland and Ralph Kress from St. Louis.

Lou Blue at first and Carey Selph at second are the only players who started the season with the White Sox who will hold regular jobs after Manager Fonseca gets his new lineup arranged.

Looks Like a Little Reign

Royally robed in sky blue transparent velvet, studded with rhinestones, Miss Eleanor Nolte, shown above, was crowned empress of the Fiesta de San Jacinto and of Celestial Light of the Court of Light at the San Antonio, Tex., ceremonies commemorating the 96th anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto in 1836. An elaborate annual pageant recalls the battle, fought between Mexicans and Sam Houston's troops near the present site of Houston. A court of 18 girls attended Empress Nolte during her brief reign.

Crippled Policeman Takes 1000 to 1 Chance to Live by Permitting Amputation of Bullet-Riddled Leg

New York—"Smiling Jack" Kennedy, crippled former Nassau county policeman, took a 1000-to-1 chance Thursday when he permitted amputation of his paralyzed right leg.

It was one of numerous operations he had had since a motorist fired a bullet into his spine; and he was told in advance that it was only the merest gamble. Death, the doctors said, would be the probable outcome but a freedom from paralysis affecting his hands the winnings—if he won.

The operation was performed by Dr. Henry Milch in the hospital for joint diseases.

An hour and a half later, the doctor said Kinnedy had just come out of the ether and was "doing as well as could be expected," and had a "fighting chance."

"If I don't come through," he said beforehand, "My wife and bo ywill be able to get along on my $1,600 pension. But I'll live. I've got to."

Salesman's Life is Saved as Doctors Order All-Night Walk After Overdose Sleep Potion

Newark, N. J.—An all-night walk through hospital corridors and an all-day jolting in a wheel-chair have saved the life of Howard Edwards despite his protests for sleep, which would have meant death.

Edwards, a salesman, took an overdose of a sleepingpotion Tuesday night and the only chance he had for life was to keep awake. His mother had him removed to the Newark city hospital. There Edwards, believing he was to be put to bed, eagerly followed two orderlies who led him down a hall.

They walked him 30 steps, then returned. Edwards drowsily protested. "I gotta sleep," he mumbled. The promenade continued and Edwards roused sufficiently at intervals to become indignant.

"Hey, leave he alone, will you," he cried. Then his chin would drop to his chest as he muttered incoherently, but always he was shuffling along between the two sturdy orderlies.

The treatment was succeeding, the patient improving, but the orderlies were weakening. Finally Edwards' escorts had to work in shifts and as their tour ended they seemed more weary than their patient.
